

Way Forward to Planetary Health

Chiho Watanabe

Professor and Executive Adviser to President, School of Tropical Medicine and Global Health, Nagasaki University

Planetary Health (PLH) is a concept which was published as a paper in 2015 and describes the health of planet and health of human, and their interdependency. The reason why such a concept, which should be well taken for granted, has been generated and introduced is associated with the notion of Anthropocene, to which humans are stepping in. Here, the significance of PLH, its recent progress, relationship with SDGs as well as One Health, and what we need to do to realize the good PLH will be discussed in this presentation.